English Classes Do Research

Mr. David McDavid's English classes have started off the year with a Library unit. All five of the English 10 classes have been making trips to the library, learning library terms, and learning to make bibliographies inside and out. All this knowledge will be put to use in a term paper. The paper itself will be unusual in the fact that it will contain footnotes, table of contents and the other parts that go into making a good term paper but it will have no contents. That is, all references, etc., are used but no material is actually written: This comes later when a knowledge of a term paper is obtained. One of the questions on a quiz given by Mr. Mac (as he is sometimes called), was how many books are there in the library. Answers ranged from 460 to 30,000, surprising isn't it when there are actually 1300.

Junior English Class Publishes Junior Record

"Junior, Junior, Junior". That's one of today's crazy songs, but here it also means the new school newspaper edited by juniors in Mr. Reynolds' English class. The paper contains various activities and opinions of Juniors. Editor-in-chief of the paper is Janet Youlden. The price of one sheet of all information concerning the juniors is one cent. This is one of the projects of a junior English class. The Junior Record was a complete sell-out on the first issue with $2.50 turned over to the Hialeah High Record's treasury.

Pat Curtis, Record Associate Editor, helped organize the staff. Janet Youlden, Junior Record Editor, said she was willing to retire after the first edition.

Deadline Comes Fast For Hi-Ways Staff

Memories for Sale is the motto of the Hialeah High School Hi-ways staff as they continue their campaign to sell the annual of '59 to all students who want some reminder of the school year. The staff, under the direction of journalism teacher Mrs. Alfreda R. Miller, has been selling the yearbooks ever since the latter part of last year, and have set their goal as a thousand. Each individual student who is selling the subscriptions are striving to sell at least one hundred. The race for the prize of a free yearbook to this good salesman runs close as the final deadline of October 15 nears.

For the first part of this school year and the last of the year before, the yearbooks were on sale for a smaller price of just $5.00. This could be paid off with a down payment of $2.50, the rest to be paid before the Christmas vacation. Students who didn't get their subscription in before the end of September just weren't lucky enough to catch the lowered prices and as a result paid the whole price of $6.00. However, the same system for paying this applied to the larger payment as well.

As yet the theme of the yearbook remains a secret as every year, but the members of the staff attest to the fact that it is to be the best yearbook yet.

High School Contest Sponsored by United

United Fund this year will sponsor a contest among High School seniors of the greater Miami area for the selection of a "Prince" and "Princess," students who will contribute the most as future citizens of Dade County.

The Prince and Princess will be chosen on the basis of: scholarship, leadership, personality, popularity, and a good general appearance. Newspaper editors and their staffs will make the final choice. (After having been nominated by the students or teachers.)

A United Fund float is currently in preparation and may be used during halftime ceremonies at High School football games, with the Prince and Princess riding it.

The contest will be tied around a theme related to the United Fund. Before Hialeah can hold this contest, it must be thoroughly discussed by faculty and the Editorial staff of the Record. Mr. Robert Wilson, head of the Dade County Secondary Schools, has approved the idea and "feels it will be a fine opportunity to honor deserving seniors and create interest in United Fund."

Several students were asked their opinion: Janette Wright, 12-14, "I think it is a very good idea!" Beverly Jernigan, 12-9, "I feel this will be a very good addition to high school participation in the United Fund."

Senior Privileges Must Be Earned

One of the biggest problems on the Thoroughbred campus these days centers on the use and misuse of Senior Privileges.

"Who do they think they are, anyway?" is asked indignantly nearly every day by many an unknowing underclassman. Seniors resent the constant abuse of these privileges, but don't seem to want the little bit of responsibility that comes along with it. Schools are known by the traditions that are made and kept through the years. Sophomores, Juniors, and Seniors alike can all help to keep the Thoroughbred reputation of "fair play" alive and kicking by their attitude toward and acceptance of certain standards of conduct. Each new Senior Class has its own ideas of what these rights should be, but three are traditional and should be respected. They include the tables reserved in the cafeteria for Seniors; Seniors leaving the auditorium first; and, of course, the use of the Senior Parking Lot supposed to be exclusively for Seniors.

Respecting these privileges is very important, but this does not all rest on the shoulders of the underclassmen. A friendly, courteous Senior will receive more of the respect due him, than will the one who insists on throwing his weight around. A true Thoroughbred Senior has the added responsibility of setting an example of good conduct for his younger classmates to follow.

The only way that this problem is going to be solved is by each side doing his share to cooperate with the other to make this tradition one that will last and be something to look forward to.

Dear Mr. Millionaire . . .

During English class the other day the class was given an assignment for the next day because we were going to have a substitute teacher. The assignment: write a letter to the "Millionaire", Mr. J. Beresford Tipton, requesting a million dollars.

Having no special reason for the request, we could think of imaginative reasons. As if the class had a purpose for requesting a million dollars, everyone got started right away.

The varied topics were as follows: One pupil pretended to be the niece of Mr. Tipton and in debt because her husband lost a bet at the race track. Another girl wanted Mr. Tipton (her father) to buy her a new Eldorado Cadillac because she had an accident on the college campus involving the Dean's car. Also since she had been confined to the campus for the week-end she was throwing a party and needed the money to rent the gym, the auditorium, the tennis courts, and the pool. One pupil was on the committee which was going to the moon in a rocket ship and needed the million for the excursion.

Most of these requests took some thought but each student needed the million $$$.

Dramatics Classes Start Play Contest

Dramatics Classes of Mr. Joe White will present a "One Act Play Contest" in two parts.

The first part will be November 3 and the second on January 3.

Each class will present one play on those nights.

The first period class calling themselves "The Playmakers" are presenting "The Valiant", a stirring drama on the first evening. Their second performance will be "The Anchor".

Second period will present "A Girl in Every Port" first and "The Secret" on the latter date. They are calling themselves the Play House II group.

Stage Door No. 3 of the third period will present "Overtones" and "Decision" in that order.

Students Studying Historic Document

The Declaration of Independence is one of the most beautiful and important documents in the English language. But do you really know and understand it?

Students of Mr. Patterson's history classes are now in this process.

First of all they started by breaking it down, word for word, and phrase by phrase. Then the students were to rewrite it in their own words.

It was very profitable for all involved and gave a better understanding of the basic principles of which our country was founded.

Russian Now?

Mr. Walter Walker, a foreign language professor of H.H.S. (on his own spare time), has begun an after-school Russian class in room 606, on Monday, Wednesday, and Thursday on a non-credit basis, (to pass on his knowledge) to around a dozen students.

The members are: Glenda Balowsky, Sandra McCord, Patsy Howe, Barry Highsmith, Barbara Pent, Donna Hermansader, Howard Kernodle, Paul Schoenfeldt, and Jocelyn Wise.

He has expectations that the class will continue to increase rapidly.

Home Laboratory, Anyone?

You say it's too expensive? Well, maybe not, some of Hialeah's students already have home laboratories and more are getting interested in science since we have been sending up satellites. Some equipment used in labs are flasks, beakers, test tubes, graduated cylinders, test tube racks and holders, and rubber tubing, microscopes, chemicals, bunsen burners, and ring stands. You can have a lab in your room or in a spare room, but since some chemicals give off fumes it is advised not to have one in the house. A laboratory can be dangerous if you don't know what you are doing. It's best to get a book of chemistry experiments and follow it.
