

Hialeah Paper Doll

EVELYN CORDEIRO, a pretty sophomore, is this week's Paper Doll. A sparkling smile, twinkling eyes, and a friendly personality make her a pleasant addition to Hialeah High.

Individuality Is Clue to Success in World of Today

A very popular T.V. program, "I Search for Adventure," features people who are today's Columbus. These people are explorers into new places, searching for the new and finding excitement in leaving the well worn path and going off into lesser known areas. They desire to be different, to lead some people by new ways, rather than to follow the trails of others. They're leaders. They are expressing their individualities and enjoying it.

Individuality is an important thing in this world of ours. Not everyone can be alike, even though he tries. In fact there are no two people exactly alike anywhere. Some people get a complex from this. So they buy a new car or a dress like their neighbor. Most children follow the same pattern. All want a red bicycle if the boy down the street gets one. It's human nature to do this. But there has to be some one up ahead to do it first. This is the person everyone looks to, this one they follow.

Couldn't he be YOU? Do you lead or do you follow? They say there must be both in this world. Which path will you take?

Letter Commends School Spirit

Dear Editor:

I would like to tell the students of Hialeah High School how wonderful the school spirit is this year.

As an example, when Hialeah was losing the game to Ft. Lauderdale, regardless of how you felt, you kept cheering the school and the team.

This goes to show how good school spirit and good sportsmanship may be.

A REAL THOROUGHbred.

Is Hialeah Drooping?

How should a campus look? Does Hialeah High's campus look like a drooping, desolate, scorched, desert island? Following are some descriptions of incidents that takes place:

Tom Nutcracker as he passes by throws out his double bubble gum from his mouth and drops the wrapper to the ground.

Susie Cheesecake as she skips along on her way to her next class drops her munchy crunchy candy paper and her sweet little love note.

Now the blades of grass begin to cringe and crumble one by one as Steeple Jack thunders by on his way to the football field.

What has the poor campus gone through? It has had just about all it can take. Shouldn't there be a stop to all the Nutcrackers, Cheesecakes, and Steeple Jacks?

Notes From The Record

Scholarship tests have filled the air with talk. Numerous associations are offering them. Such as the Woman's Auxiliary, Miami Herald and others. Students wishing more information on scholarships should contact Mr. Robert Mohr who is the head of the scholarship department.

TRICK OR TREAT

Again the time for ghosts and witches has arrived. Besides the usual devil, witch, skelton, and ho-bo costumes, there has been some new outfits added, such as Satellites, Joe, Zorro, Mr. Hot Dog, and many others. Don't be surprised if you don't see any Hobos this year. Progress is developing even in Hallowe'en costumes.

Have A Safe Halloween

Don't mind if you hear spooky sounds and everything looks weird 'cause half the fun of Halloween is feelin' kinda skeer-ed! In just a few days the witches and sprites will be out.

Witches will be flying to and fro on their brooms and screaming in shrill voices; the ghosts, dressed in white will be floating through the air; and the spirits in the graveyard will be making their weird noises around the tombstones.

All these and more will set out for fun on October 31. Many teenagers will be out for fun, but much of this fun will be destructive.

It's fun to scare people, but not endanger them. There are hundreds of worthless pranks pulled every year. Some of them prefer to damage the schools. That is really damaging your own property because it's your own money that pays for it.

On the other hand there are teenagers who have a good time; they attend Halloween parties, dances and such. Why don't you be on the other hand this year?

Try Being on the Other End

Since we were old enough to understand the world that was spinning around us, we've heard the words, "Be polite," many times.

Now that we are "teenagers" we are supposedly young men and women, who have reached the age of recognition. The parent can only go so far with help and guidance, then we must take it from there.

Try to be considerate of the other fellow trying to get to class on time or the ones in study hall or just the regular guy trying to stay on his side of the hall. Put yourself in his place and come up with the solution you would want if you were on the other end of the push!

Nix on Lineblocking

"George old buddy, let me ahead will ya?" Gotta cut back to that old geometry dungeon."

"Sure Paul," replies George.

Okay, now let's examine this little scene as the people behind George and Paul see it. Here they have been standing in line ten minutes which thanks to fellow students like Paul and George is five minutes too long and they begin to get a little disgusted and frustrated.

If we would stop to consider that a line is used to serve you efficiently and effectively we would not continue to butt up in line.

Now let's face it! You do it; I do it! So let's stop this lineblocking and do ourselves and the cafeteria personnel a favor.

'TV Student' Is Answered

Dear T.V. Student:

You seem to have a somewhat "warped" opinion of T.V. classes, apparently you are not aware of the time and effort put into those classes by your instructors. The best teachers available were selected to lecture on each telecast and in the classroom. Specially trained personnel are planning class procedures and are constantly searching for new and interesting materials to present to the hundreds of students who might otherwise have been unable to receive such benefits.

A movie on the Declaration of Independence shown before the telecast on Monday, October 13, and which tied in with the current lesson is an example of the foresight and planning of the many people involved in presenting the film.

Now really, is there such a distinct absence of the student-teacher relationship so prominent in smaller classes? Certainly not! The classroom and T.V. instructors are notorious for making reference to certain students during lectures and review periods. Any student may be called on at any time to answer a question (which, all too often, is a devastating shock to Sam Sleepyhead or Polly Primper!). Also, as Mr. Bright points out, every intelligent question will be answered either before the entire class or privately.

T.V. Student, if you are still bewildered about the accomplishments of educational television, just remember, it is still in the experimental stage and will not be forced on students if it is proven impractical. Meanwhile, you still must earn two credits in American history, so get busy and make the most of your predicament.

What Creates A Delinquent?

In today's complex and unique life there are many types of individuals who do not conform to the pattern which is laid down by the beliefs and laws of society. Among these, we find one of the most publicized, and maybe the biggest danger to future society, the juvenile delinquent.

The delinquent may be only a minor, and yet he participates in every known crime committed. His danger to the society lies not only in the present, but in the future, where he will take a greater role in government and other affairs as he reaches that all important age of twenty-one.

It has never been decided what makes a juvenile delinquent. The more than two percent of today's minors, who are considered delinquents come from every class imaginable. If it is not a certain environment which turns the nation's youngsters bad, then what?

Could it be they are rebelling from the very thing they must conform to, in order to be accepted. Maybe they look to the future and do not like what they see. Maybe they do not have the desire to grow up, where they are supposed to express themselves, and then have to conform to every whim and desire of such a tight society. What is the answer?

"Glass, China, and Reputation..."

Benjamin Franklin once said, "Glass, china, and reputations are easily cracked and never well mended." Good or bad reputations don't just happen, they have to be earned.

As unfair as it may seem, the whole honor and distinction of a school can be degraded by just a hand full of selfish individuals who haven't quite grown up yet. School spirit is great, and plays an important part in building a good reputation, but when it's used as an excuse for thoughtlessness and harmful conduct of certain people it's time something was done!

Through strong school spirit and pride, true Thoroughbreds of Hialeah High have shown their good breeding in many ways. If each would go just a little farther, by taking the responsibility of keeping these few "children" in hand, they will receive the admiration and respect they really deserve.
